Read the following passage about endangered languages and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 12 to 19.

The Earth's climate is changing rapidly, and the consequences of this change are becoming more evident each year. Scientists agree that human activities, particularly the burning of fossil fuels such as coal, oil, and natural gas, are major contributors to this warming. These activities release large amounts of greenhouse gases like carbon dioxide (CO₂) into the atmosphere. As a result, global temperatures have risen by approximately 1.2°C since the late 19th century, leading to severe impacts on ecosystems, weather patterns, and human societies.

One of the most concerning effects of climate change is the melting of polar ice caps and glaciers. As these massive ice formations disappear, sea levels rise, putting coastal cities at risk of flooding. Furthermore, the loss of ice in polar regions threatens species like polar bears, which rely on ice for their hunting and migration. Warmer ocean temperatures also contribute to more frequent and intense storms, such as hurricanes and typhoons.

To combat climate change, governments around the world are working to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. For example, the European Union has committed to reducing its emissions by at least 55% by 2030 compared to 1990 levels. Renewable energy sources, like solar and wind power, offer a sustainable alternative to fossil fuels. In addition, reforestation projects aim to absorb CO₂ from the atmosphere, helping to slow down global warming.

Technology also plays a key role in addressing climate change. Innovations like carbon capture and storage (CCS) allow companies to trap CO₂ emissions before they reach the atmosphere. This technology is still being developed but shows great potential in reducing overall emissions. Scientists are also exploring geoengineering solutions, such as reflecting sunlight away from the Earth to cool the planet.

Read the following passage about the urban shift and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 40.

[I] Lifelong learning is the ongoing, voluntary, and self-motivated pursuit of knowledge for personal or professional development (Knowles, 2020). [II] In an age of rapid technological advancement and shifting global demands, the importance of continued learning has grown significantly. [III] This growing relevance sets the foundation for examining the concrete benefits of lifelong learning across various dimensions of life. [IV]

One of the primary benefits of lifelong learning is its ability to enhance employability. Individuals who engage in continuous education are more likely to keep their skills relevant and competitive in the job market.

According to a report by the World Economic Forum (2021), over 50% of employees will need reskilling due to technological advancements in the coming years. Lifelong learners are better equipped to adapt to these changes, making them more attractive candidates for employers.

Moreover, lifelong learning contributes to personal fulfillment and mental well-being. Engaging in new learning experiences can stimulate the brain, foster creativity, and improve cognitive function. Research indicates that individuals who pursue learning opportunities throughout their lives tend to report higher levels of happiness and life satisfaction (Smith & Johnson, 2019). Whether it is taking a course, learning a new language, or picking up a new hobby, the process of acquiring knowledge can be enriching and enjoyable.

In addition, lifelong learning promotes social engagement and community involvement. Participating in educational programs or community workshops can foster connections with others who share similar interests. This social aspect of learning can enhance one's sense of belonging and support networks, which are crucial for mental health (Jones, 2022).

Overall, lifelong learning is not just an individual responsibility; it requires support from educational institutions, employers, and communities to create an environment conducive to continuous education. By fostering a culture of learning, society can better prepare individuals for the challenges of the future and ensure that everyone has the opportunity to thrive.
